One Step

in the Right Direction

The Early Years

Bridgewater State College, one of the oldest public colleges in America, first opened its doors in September 1840. Nicholas Tillinghast, a graduate of West Point and a former instructor at the Academy, was the first principal of the school. There were seven men and twenty-one women in the initial graduating class.

Former Town Hall's first floor was the school's home from 1840 to 1846 until a permanent building was constructed on the present quadrangle in 1921; this was the first building erected in America for the preparation of teachers. Also, at this time the school was allowed to award only the Bachelor of Science degree. However, in 1932 the school became Bridgewater State Teacher's College, and in 1937 the college began offering graduate courses. A full-fledged, multi-purpose liberal arts curriculum was introduced in 1960 and the degree of Bachelor of Arts was added.

Bridgewater Today

Today, the college has grown to more than 9,000 full and part-time students and two-hundred and seventy full-time faculty. While maintaining a strong emphasis on liberal arts and teacher education, BSC has expanded significantly into several professional fields, such as social work, computer science, aviation science, and management science.

The first woman president of Bridgewater State, Adrian Tinsley was appointed in 1989 and has helped the college flourish into the 21st century. In September 1995, the Moakley Center opened and established Bridgewater as a leader among pioneering institutions in New England educational technology. With the construction of a commuter rail station in the heart of Bridgewater two years later, the college has become accessible to students from all over the region. Expanding from a single building and a quarter-acre of land in 1846, BSC now has two-hundred and forty acres and thirty academic, administrative, and residential buildings, all of which are wired for high-speed voice, video, and data transmission.

A message from our President

To the members of the class of 2001:

Yours is a class that made history from the moment your freshman year began. First, you were destined to be a class that would begin its studies in one century and end them in another. Second, that day in September of 1997 when the academic year started, the pedestrian passageway uniting East and West campuses opened, and thus your class is the first to spend a full four years at Bridgewater able to move easily between the two halves of the college. And third, just two weeks after your arrival here, the MBTA's Old Colony Line resumed service after a 40-year hiatus, and yours became the first class at the college since the late 1950's to have full access to-and-from Boston and stops in between via commuter rail.

Such were the circumstances of your auspicious beginning at Bridgewater, and the ensuing years were equally eventful both for you and for the college. This is especially true in the area of technology, where you were in the vanguard of true pioneers in the use of computers for educational purposes (registering for courses online and accessing the resources of the Maxwell Library from anywhere on or off campus are just two of the technological innovations that were introduced at Bridgewater during your years here). By the time your senior year arrived, the college had been chosen by Internet Life magazine as one of the "100 Most Wired Colleges in America."

Beyond technology, yours are recalled as milestone years at your alma mater. For example, the new School of Management and Aviation Science was opened, new master's degree programs in public administration and business management were introduced, and we began planning for the construction of four new major buildings. In addition, we launched the college's first public endowment campaign with the aim of raising $10 million dollars to support student scholarships and faculty research. The positive impact of all these efforts will be felt at Bridgewater for many generations to come.

For your part, you will recall your Bridgewater years from a different -- but no less important -- perspective. If your college experience was typical, you will look back and remember with great fondness the friends you made and the many opportunities you had to grow in knowledge, thanks primarily to the faculty who served as your teachers, guides and mentors.

I hope that the good memories you take from your Bridgewater experience will be a source of inspiration for you in the years to come, and that throughout your life you will use your talent, skills and energy to be productive in your career and helpful to your fellow citizens. The seal on your diploma bears Bridgewater's motto -- "Not to be Ministered Unto but to Minister" -- and that is both a challenge and a goal that each graduate is expected to embrace.

Even though your undergraduate studies at Bridgewater have come to a close, there is a part of you that remains here forever. On behalf of our entire campus family, I hope you will come back often to renew your connections with this, your proud alma mater.

Sincerely,

Adrian Tinsley
President

Remembering Regina Gross

The 2001 Yearbook Staff proudly dedicates this year's book to Regina "Reggie" Gross, who retired from the Movement Arts, Health and Leisure Department in 1997 after teaching for over thirty-three years. As a full Professor of Kinetics at Bridgewater State, Ms. Gross also has coached women's basketball from 1967 to 1969 and 1972 to 1978 and softball from 1971 to 1973. During her tenure as head women's basketball coach, her teams had only one losing season and even competed in numerous post-season tournaments.

This remarkable lady even served as Bridgewater State College's first woman athletic director from 1973 to 1978, a time when only nine sports were offered. Born in Auburn, Maine, she graduated from Boston University, Columbia University, and Springfield College and was probably most proud of her induction into the Bridgewater State College Athletic Hall of Fame and the New England Women's Sports Hall of Fame.

Up above: Regina Gross and Mary Lou Thornberg (Physical Education, 1968)

To the right: Reggie Gross, Mary Lou Thornberg, and Dr. Mary Moriarty (Physical Education, 1969)

For Reggie
Do Not Stand At My Grave and Weep,
I Am Not There I Do Not Sleep

I Am a Thousand Winds That Blow.
I Am The Diamond Glints On Snow.

I Am The Sunshine On Ripened Grain,
I Am The Gentle Autumn Rain.

When You Awaken In the Morning's Hush,
I Am The Swift Uplifting Rush, Of Quiet Birds In Circled Flight.

I Am The Soft Stars That Shine At Night

Do Not Stand At My Grave And Cry, I Am Not There I Did Not Die

Faculty and Friends Honor "Reggie's" Memory

"She was a wise and informed mentor...she always spoke from her heart...."

Dr. Kilbourne

"She served us for many years with dedication, distinction, and the highest degree of professionalism."

Dr. Yeskewicz

"She was a dedicated professor who always made time for students or for faculty seeking her advice or counsel. Reggie had an amazing sense of humor [and] an astute sense of fairness."

Dr. Humphreys

"Reggie was well-loved by her students because she had a great way of explaining things. She was always available to her students and...always focused on the students' needs."

Dr. Anderson

Whazzzzup, Bridgewater State ?

First Semester 2000

The college promises that by 2002 we will have an 84,000 square foot athletic complex, including a fitness center and indoor track. Construction has also begun on a new dining facility and an air-conditioned residence hall with a bookstore, convenience store, and coffee shop.

SGA spends thousands to furnish the Campus Center with furniture and to install a "Cyber Cafe" in the Commuter Cafeteria.

Students rally in support of teachers, who have been working for three years without a contract.

Parking problems continue to plague the college as the Lower Great Hill lot lost dozens of spaces due to a crosswalk and commuters who continue to arrive before 7 a.m. to find spots.

2000 American Baseball Coaches Association selected baseball coach Rick Smith as Division III New England Coach of the Year.

SPECIAL
MOMENTS

Convocation

Dr. Clifford Wood, the college Marshal, led the procession into the Horace Mann Auditorium just before one o'clock on Friday, September 29, 2000. This was the beginning of the first official event marking the new school year for seniors. Convocation is an academic tradition that dates back to the early days of the college.

This year the guest speaker was Kathy Delaney-Smith from the class of 1971. She has been the women's coach at Harvard University since 1982 and has won the 1996-97 Ivy League "Coach of the Year Award." She not only shared stories of her success, but also tried to inspire the students to strive to reach their goals.

President Tinsley also awarded two faculty members with medallions for their 25 years of service to the college: Foreign Language professor Stanley Hamilton and Psychology professor Susan Todd.

1. Adrian Tinsley and Fred Clark present Dr. Stanley Hamilton with the silver medallion representing 25 years of service to the Bridgewater State College community.
2. The Bridgewater State College wind ensemble treats the crowd to an award-winning performance.
3. Leslie Comperchio sings "America the Beautiful" and the Alma Mater before the Convocation ceremony begins.
4. Kathy Delaney-Smith inspires the seniors with a message from the heart.
5. Student Government President, Amanda DuBois gives her embarking speech.
6. These students wait patiently for the ceremony to begin.
7. Adrian Tinsley addresses the seniors with words of congratulations.
8. Clifford Wood, the college Marshal and also an alumnus of the class of 1960, steps to the podium after leading the procession into the auditorium.
9. In the presence of the prestigious Bridgewater State College faculty, President Adrian Tinsley begins with her usual flair of enthusiasm.
10. Fred Clark and President Tinsley present Dr. Susan Todd with a silver medallion for her service to the college.

Homecoming

With its Mardi Gras theme, this year's Homecoming Weekend was a great success. The weekend was kicked off with a bonfire, which was held in the Miles/DiNardo field. The festivities continued during the following morning with a grand parade, where many BSC clubs and organizations were able to show off their decorative floats, hand out the traditional Mardi Gras beads to the enthusiastic crowd, and perform short skits or dance routines.

After the parade, nearly everyone was off to the ceremonial football game, where the Bridgewater State College Bears beat the U-Mass Dartmouth Coursairs football team 28-26 in a very heated competition. The BSC men's soccer team also had a victorious day with a 1-0 win against Fitchburg State College. The Homecoming King and Queen were two very well-deserving students: Peter Liska and Amanda DuBois.

1. From lab coats to dramatic explosions to Mardi Gras beads, the Chemistry Club dazzled the crowd with many surprises along the parade route.
2. Band members and fans cheer on the hometown team with homemade noisemakers.
3. The crowd gathers to find out who were the winners of the float building contest.
4. A member of the staff serves ice cream to two future BSC students.
5. The Bridgewater State College 2000 Homecoming King and Queen, Amanda DuBois and Peter Liska, wave to the crowd after their coronation.
6. Theta Phi Alpha busts a move with Sigma Pi in order to impress the judges.
7. The members of the Chemistry Club worked very hard to win the "Most Creative and the Best in Show Float" in the Homecoming Parade.
8. The Afro-Am club proves to be one of the most creative and hard-working clubs with its highly decorative costumes.
9. These three club members strut their stuff at float construction the night prior to the parade.
10. Go Bristaco! The parade wouldn't be complete without the mascot.

Springfest

This year's Springfest was a week full of exciting activities that were sponsored by Program Committee. Some of the main events included the drive-in movie, Street Fest, and the annual concert. Shown on Wednesday night behind the campus center on the grass, "Snatch" entertained a boisterous crowd; one group of friends even brought out their own couch.

The Street Fest held on Friday, May 29th was sponsored by numerous organizations and included rock climbing and a pie-throwing contest. Also, "Battle of the Bands" was hosted by WBIM and proved "Moso" the champion group. In turn, they were the opening act for "Gravity Kills" and "Reel Big Fish" in the main concert on Saturday in the Lower Great Hill lot.

5. This student takes advantage of the chemistry and biology clubs' table to try tie-dyeing and silly putty.
6. Pie-face Arnold must have lost at the BSC "Jeopardy" game sponsored by Afro-Am.
7. Hot-shot singer Josh checks out the Springfest events on another's informative t-shirt.
8. A BSC student gives Bristaco an affectionate bear hug.
9. Students create pet rocks at the Earth Science and Geography table.
10. Climbing the rock wall is a real challenge. Will he make it to the top?

Winter Graduation

On Tuesday, January 30, 2001, 563 men and women of Bridgewater State College received their degrees at the winter commencement ceremony held in the Rondileau Campus Center Auditorium. There were three others in attendance who were receiving honorary degrees from the college: Edward W. Brooke III, who received a Doctorate of Public Service, as well as Zelda F. Gamson and David G. Imig, who both received a Doctorate of Education.

Imig then told graduates how important their contributions would become in building the foundation of a new America. He also emphasized how they will have the opportunity to influence children from diverse backgrounds and teach them about tolerance. After all the graduate degrees were handed out, Janine Smeedy gave an outstanding speech recognizing the many people who helped her along the long road to graduation. She advised students to forge a pathway for others to follow.

5. President Adrian Tinsley asks all the graduates to jump into life.
6. Fred Clark and President Tinsley pull double duty as they congratulate graduates.
7. This ecstatic gentleman smiles as he receives an honorary degree from Bridgewater State College.
8. This is a day these two students will never forget.
9. "I can't believe the day has finally come!"
10. "Thank you, President Tinsley," this student seems to smile.

Spring Graduation

Dr. Adrian Tinsley, the 10th president in the 161-year history of Bridgewater State College, announced at the college's annual spring commencement on May 19, 2001 that the next academic year will be her last as president. She will leave the office in June 2002 after completing 13 years as the president of the largest state college in Massachusetts.

"Class of 2001, as this is a time of transition for you, it begins, as well, a time of transition for me," she told the 900 undergraduate and graduate students in her personal message at the start of commencement Saturday morning.

"I have mixed emotions about concluding my presidency at the end of the next academic year because I feel such a close attachment to this college and to all of the people who are part of this community," she said. "But I believe it is now appropriate for me and for the college to plan for a transition because so much of what I hoped we would accomplish when I came here in July of 1989 will, in fact, be realized when I leave the presidency in the summer of 2002."

Following those remarks, the graduates, along with those in attendance heard from the Right Honourable Beverley McLachlin, P.C., Chief Justice of the Supreme Court of

Spring Graduation

Canada. Chief Justice McLachlin, the first woman to hold her country's highest legal position, provided the graduates with what she referred to as "one person's humble recipe for living a good life."

"There are three pieces to living a good life. The first is to find work you love. The second is having found work you love, pursue it with a passion to serve," said Chief Justice McLachlin. "The third is to stay straight. Conduct yourself with complete honor and dignity. If you follow these three steps, you will lead a good life wherever fate's winding road may lead."

Also receiving an honorary degree, along with Chief Justice

McLachlin, was retired Judge Baron H. Martin of East Wareham. Judge Martin, in 1972, became the seventh African-American judge in the history of Massachusetts.

The Distinguished Service Award, presented by the Bridgewater State College Board of Trustees, was awarded to Mr. Daniel Crane of Easton. Crane recently retired from his 30-year position as executive director of the Old Colony Planning Council. The OCPC provides municipal assistance, elder services administration and planning, and economic development programming, including transportation, land use, housing and water quality management.

Ms. Judith Graham, a member of the Class of 2001 and student speaker, encouraged her fellow classmates not to be deterred by life's challenges, but to embrace them.

"Go with your dreams, goals and ambitions. Do not let anyone tell you, you can't do something," said Ms. Graham. "Remember the good times and take the valuable lessons you have learned, not just from professors and parents, but from each other as well. Hold them close to you, and refer to them when you need them most."

CONGRATULATIONS GRADUATES!

Whazzzzup, Bridgewater State ?

Second Semester 2001

BSC opens the Hunt School as a campus building. Vacant for two years, the building was purchased for $225,000 and now houses college classrooms and offices. In addition, the college will also provide the town with computer services worth another $600,000.

Ska band Reel Big Fish entertains an exuberant crowd in the Lower Great Hill Lot as the headliner band for Spring Fest 2001.

Dr. Adrian Tinsley announced at the college's annual spring commencement that she will leave the office in June 2002 after completing 13 years as the president of the largest state college in Massachusetts. President Tinsley pledged to see to the successful conclusion of a number of major projects undertaken during her years in office that include hall and a 700-seat dining facility on the East Side of campus. The college is also in the midst of its first-ever public capital campaign which has a $10 million goal to support more student scholarship and greater funding for faculty research.

$56.3 million for new buildings — including a $17.3 million field house, a 300-bed residence

The new buildings are scheduled to open in 2002.

Bridgewater native and 1990 graduate of Bridgewater-Raynham Regional High School, Dave Morwick has written, is co-producing, and is starring in the film Little Merryweather, which was filmed on campus in April. Budgeted at $120,000, this film is a "smart thriller with more intellectual appeal than [the popular] 'hip' slasher films" and will run in next year's Sundance Film Festival.

Second Semester News (courtesy of The Comment and the BSC Homepage)

Bridgewater State College

The college says goodbye to Professor John Heller, who joined the art faculty in 1968 and died on February 17, 2001 of a massive heart attack. Heller was very active in all phases of college life, serving on many committees, advising students, authoring new programs, organizing exhibits, as well as carrying a full teaching schedule. He unselfishly shared his time, expertise, and friendship with students and colleagues. John also found time to direct his creative talents in the making of fine jewelry and ceramics as well as serving on the boards and committees of a number of professional, regional and national craft organizations. The BSC College Foundation has established a memorial fund in John's memory.

BSC mourns the loss of Jerrol Justin Toldeo. Passing away on Thursday March 15, Jerrol was a graduate of Brockton High School in 1998 and was a Rose Scholarship recipient here at Bridgewater. This junior was a management science major and was well known as an active member and leader in many campus organizations.

In an activity sponsored by SGA, Loveline's Dr. Drew Lipinsky spoke to students in an interactive session about the good, the bad, and the ugly of sex, love, health and interpersonal relationships. He left students with the message to really try to understand the differences between the sexes and trust their instincts.

"The Moral of the Story": A Word from Your Editor

by Jennifer D. Grunin

When people ask me what I will remember most after graduating from Bridgewater-Raynham Regional High School in 1999, most would be surprised when I didn't say it was starring as the Wicked Stepmother in Cinderella, helping produce excellent school newspapers and yearbooks as the Editor-in-Chief, earning my way into the National Honors Society, finally making it as a catcher on varsity softball, receiving a stellar education from some of the most dedicated faculty members on the planet, being awarded a full scholarship to college and too many academic awards to count, enjoying great times with great friends, or standing in front of over three thousand people on graduation day as the valedictorian. Ironically, what I will remember most is when my good friend David, an eighteen year-old boy who had been one of my best buddies since first grade, lost his battle with cancer.

Some might say that I am dwelling on the negative and depressing. After all, I did experience quite a few wonderful, positive events that have helped mold me into the person I have become. However, nothing has influenced my life more than watching a heartless, biological killer reduce an affectionate, happy-go-lucky, fun-loving, healthy, promising future artist to an emaciated skeleton lying six feet under the ground.

Why did an innocent boy like David get cancer? Who knows? Why does an excited family of four on a trip to Disney World die in a plane crash when 99% of all families of four arrive at their destinations safe and sound? Why did Death take away BSC's own Jerrol Toledo without warning during Spring Break while most other students had the right to enjoy the much needed vacation? Why was the so-called bomb scare here at BSC in June only a "scare" and why did the dozens of evacuated people (including yours truly) live to tell the tale while workers in an Oklahoma City government building were hardly as fortunate?

Here is your answer. Innocent people die for two reasons: A malfunction in the great system we call "Life" and bad luck. Kind of scary, isn't it? Come on, isn't it frightening that you could close this yearbook after reading this page, walk outside, and have a piano fall on your head?

All right, all right. Enough of my digression. What is the moral of the story? How can you turn all these negative thoughts into a positive, life-changing experience where you will not wake up everyday thinking that you are going to die? Well, my friends, I will impart to you the same message I did to all those in attendance on my high school graduation day.

Life is too short and unpredictable. Go ahead, laugh at things for no reason. Take a break from work to spend some time with good friends. Be yourself when others around you think and do otherwise. Never go to bed angry. Never leave without saying good bye. Live your life without regrets, and, every once in a while, don't be afraid to eat dessert first and spoil your dinner.

No matter what the world thinks, find and pursue something that will make you happy. It's never too late. Each of you has a dream; whether it is to sing on the Broadway stage, travel to Europe, open a bar and grill, become a plumber...go for it! Whatever you set out to do, become the best darn plumber, homemaker or insurance salesman that you can be.

Too many people live their lives waiting for weekends and two-week vacations. Don't be that person who wakes up every morning and dreads going to work (come on, doesn't that sound like someone you know?). In other words, pursue something you love. Each of you has a rainbow. Follow it and see where it leads.

Finally, if you left Bridgewater State College with nothing else but your diploma on graduation day, be sure also to take with you these two words: Carpe Diem, seize the day. Make your lives extraordinary.

The time to start is now. This time is a gift... and that is why they call it "The Present."
